Typical Course Introduction

Welcome to Research and Statistics. This class will teach you how to design research studies and critique basic research designs, select the right statistical tests, and interpret statistical findings used in research studies in your major. The course focuses on critical thinking about research and strengthens quantitative reasoning. If you did well in your basic math course or introduction to statistics course, you will likely do well in this course. You will learn new statistical language and be expected to calculate descriptive statistics. You need to do all the assigned reading before class or you will be unprepared for the class discussion. If you miss more than three classes, you will fail this course. If you don't put in enough effort, do all the readings, and complete all the practice assignments, you will not get a very good grade. Papers turned in late will be penalized two points per day that they are late. Our department has a strong policy about plagiarism and if you copy work of others, you will fail this class. If you do it a second time, you may be asked to leave the major.
